MARSH HAS HIGH TRANS-TASMAN EXPECTATIONS

Australian Oaks winner Sofia Rosa heads up trainer Stephen Marsh's two-pronged trans-Tasman Group One attack tomorrow

Stephen Marsh's Group One hopes will be spread on Saturday with top-flight contenders on both sides of the Tasman.

The Cambridge trainer will be at Caulfield where Sofia Rosa (NZ) (Makfi) opens her spring campaign in the New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes while he will be hoping No More Tears (NZ) (Darci Brahma) can draw first blood in the Hawke's Bay Triple Crown series in the Makfi Challenge Stakes.

Sofia Rosa will be making her first appearance since she won the Gr.1 Australian Oaks and while 1400 metres will be well short of her best, Marsh is confident of a bold showing from the mare.

"She hasn't quite turned in the coat yet, but she is doing really well and looks great," he said.

Marsh also can't fault the progress of No More Tears, who was runner-up when resuming in the Gr.2 Foxbridge Plate.

"She just missed the kick at Te Rapa and got a fair way back," he said. "Against the pattern of the day, she got home well and she's done great since."

Marsh will also be focussed on an undercard event at Hastings with a future Group One contender in Ugo Foscolo (NZ) (Zacinto) to return to action in the El Roca Sprint.

"He's coming up a treat and, while he hasn't had a trial, we believe we've got him pretty well up to the mark," he said.

"We think he's got a very bright future and wouldn't swap him for anything."

Unbeaten in two runs last season, Ugo Foscolo will return to Hastings on October 1 for the Gr.2 Sacred Falls Guineas as his final lead in to the Gr.1 Sothys NZ 2000 Guineas at Riccarton on November 5.

TRAINER PHILOSOPHICAL OVER BARRIER BLUES

Chris Gibbs isn't over-analysing the poor hands dealt to the stable's Group One contenders at Hastings on Saturday.

Both Valley Girl (NZ) (Mastercraftsman) and Hasselhoof (NZ) (Tavistock) will have wide gates to deal with in their chase for the opening leg of the Hawke's Bay Triple Crown series, the Makfi Challenge Stakes.

"It is what it is and you have to work with it," said Gibbs, who prepares the duo at Ruakaka with Donna Logan. "Somebody has to draw out there and unfortunately both of ours did."

Valley Girl and Hasselhoof resumed on their home track earlier this month with the former winning the open sprint and the latter filling third spot.

"They are both in very good order and Hasselhoof has improved, the mare doesn't really need to, and he has tightened up," Gibbs said.

The Allan Sharrock-trained Kawi (NZ) (Savabeel) who is the current favourite to take out the race, and will defend his title under last year's winning rider Leith Innes, will also start wide after he drew barrier 15.

A sparkling jumpout at New Plymouth on Monday told New Plymouth trainer Allan Sharrock that Kawi was in the right condition to defend his title in Saturday's Gr.1 Makfi Challenge Stakes (1400m) at Hastings

It was just the performance Sharrock wanted to see from three-time Group One winner Kawi as he prepares for the weight-for-age first Group One of the new season.

"He's just had a 1000m jumpout and he went enormous," Sharrock said.

Valley Girl will have to overcome a wide barrier if she is to take out tomorrow's Gr. 1 Makfi Challenge Stakes

NEWS IN BRIEF

Tavago (NZ) (Tavistock)

Bulkier Tavago ready to resume

Co-trainer Trent Busuttin has been delighted with Gr.1 Australian Derby winner Tavago's (NZ) (Tavistock) development since his successful three-year-old campaign last season.

"To be fair he needed to put on some weight as he only tipped the scales at 455kg when he last raced," he said.

"He spelled super and most of the extra weight is muscle so we have something more to play with this preparation."

Tavago will resume in Saturday's Gr.1 New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes at Caulfield where he will be ridden by Ben Melham.

"The jump-out at Cranbourne last week has brought him on and he's forward enough to be competitive," said Busuttin, who prepares Tavago with his partner Natalie Young.

"It's a bit of an unknown taking on the older horses for the first time, but we're happy with the horse."

Rising Romance (NZ) (Ekraar)

Rising Romance outside chance in Memsie

Lindsay Park and the all-conquering Darren Weir stable saddle half the field in the opening Australian Group One race of the season, the New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes at Caulfield.

Included in the Lindsay Park contenders is Rising Romance (NZ) (Ekraar) who is rated as a $21 chance.

Rising Romance, who is yet to win in 12 starts for Lindsay Park, is going as well as she ever has in her time with the stable according to Dabernig.

"It's been a long time since she's won but she has been beaten narrowly in a couple of Group Ones for us," Dabernig said.

Rising Romance is likely to head to the Makybe Diva Stakes at Flemington on September 10, a race she finished second in last year, after which she is due to make a stud visit to Written Tycoon.

Plans are to race the mare in foal with the owners hoping to start her in the Cox Plate.

Weir will saddle up last year's Melbourne Cup winner Prince Of Penzance (NZ) (Pentire), a $41 chance.

Awake In Grinzing (NZ) (Rip Van Winkle)

Awake in Grinzing starts spring campaign

Impressive debut winner Awake In Grinzing (NZ) (Rip Van Winkle) steps up to stakes company on Saturday in the Gr.3 McNeil Stakes (1200m) at Caulfield.

Prepared at Flemington by Danny O'Brien, Awake In Grinzing won over the same distance at Sandown in July and is expected to be better suited once up in distance and is being aimed towards the Gr.1 Victoria Derby.

"He's certainly got the pedigree to run a mile-and-a-quarter (2000m), a mile-and-a-half (2400m), O'Brien said. "It's always the long-range plan with horses with his sort of pedigree to give them the chance to possibly be around when the Derby's run but there's other Derbys and good three-year-old races in the autumn if it all comes too soon."

Awake in Grinzing is rated a $12 chance on Saturday in what looks a competitive and open race.

Tempo key for Provocative

Provocative (NZ) (Zabeel) needs a strong tempo to be considered a genuine winning chance in the Listed Heatherlie Stakes

Provocative (NZ) (Zabeel)

(1700m) at Caulfield on Saturday according to trainer Tony Pike.

The Queensland Oaks winner is on a path towards the Caulfield Cup and while pleased with the condition of his mare, Pike feels her wide barrier could be negative to her winning hopes.

"She is reasonably forward, she doesn't take a lot of work and is a clean-winded mare," Pike said.

"Fitness won't be an issue but because of her wide barrier we are going to go back and look for cover early as it is the start of a long preparation.

"With that in mind she is probably going to need some speed on early if she is to win."

Provocative is on the second line of betting for the Heatherlie Stakes at $6 with Tom Melbourne (Dylan Thomas) favourite at $4.80.

Damien Oliver is riding Provocative this Saturday and has also been booked to ride the lightly-raced mare at her next start in the Naturalism Stakes.

Sacred Master (NZ) (Mastercraftsman)

Premiers' Cup a stepping stone for Sacred Master

NEWS IN BRIEF

Saturday's Listed Premier's Cup (1900m) at Rosehill.

Rory Hutchings will again partner Sacred Master who has had two runs for Sydney conditioner Chris Waller since crossing the Tasman.

Previously in the care of Tony Pike, Sacred Master caught the eye first up and was unsuited by slow sectionals at his second Sydney start.

"He just started to get warmed up late last start and had to ease and just about fell," Waller said. "He's got a gear change, with the Bubble Cheeker on to help him go straighter and he worked well with it the other day."

Saracino (NZ) (Per Incanto)

Saracino confirmed for Danehill Stakes

Gr.2 Lisa Chittick Foxbridge Plate winner Saracino (NZ) (Per Incanto) will fly to Melbourne next week ahead of his Australian debut in the Gr.2 Danehill Stakes (1200m) at Flemington on September 10.

Bruce Perry, the racing manager for Saracino's owner Lib Petagna, said the Per Incanto colt had come through his Foxbridge exertions in good order and the sensible move was sending him straight to Australia to continue his buildup towards the Gr.1 Caulfield Guineas in October.

"His programme is still to be decided but he's a high-class colt and we wanted to get him straight to Australia," Perry said.

"He'll probably go from the Danehill on to the Guineas Prelude and then if he looks like he'll run out a strong mile on to the Guineas itself. If he shows he'll be better kept to sprinting, then there's the option of the Coolmore Stakes. My gut feeling is he'll run a strong mile."

Kiwi filly makes her mark

Group One contender Rosa Carolina (NZ) (Savabeel) has made an immediate impact from her new Australian quarters.

Placed in one of her two starts for Cambridge trainer Stephen Marsh last season, the daughter of Savabeel was a first-up winner at Gosford on Tuesday from Kris Lees' Newcastle stable.

Rosa Carolina is being aimed toward the Gr.1 1000 Guineas at Caulfield on October 8.

She is raced by Lib Petagna, who also has high spring hopes with Sofia Rosa (NZ) (Makfi), Lucia Valentina (NZ) (Savabeel) and Saracino (NZ) (Per Incanto) chasing Group One prizes during the Melbourne carnival.

The Jewel (NZ) (O'Reilly)

The Jewel dies

Dual Group One winner and valuable broodmare The Jewel (NZ) (O'Reilly) has died in a freak accident after striking her head while undergoing a dental procedure.

The winner of 11 of her 30 starts and prizemoney of $541,363, The Jewel has produced three winners from four foals to race including The Diamond One (Tale of the Cat) who won the last three renewals of the Gr.3 White Robe Lodge Handicap.

The O'Reilly mare is also the dam of stakes performers The Glitzy One (Flying Spur) and Fastnet Rock stallion The Bold One.

A colt out of The Jewel, by Savabeel, will be offered at the New Zealand Bloodstock National Yearling Sales Series in January 2017.

Coffey to ride Cup winner

Harry Coffey says he is proud to be chosen to ride Melbourne Cup winner Prince Of Penzance (NZ) (Pentire) in his return at Caulfield.

Prince Of Penzance starts his build-up to this year's Cup in Saturday's Gr.1 New Zealand Bloodstock Memsie Stakes (1400m).

Cup-winning jockey Michelle Payne is still weeks away from a return following a fall in May while Coffey is not long back from a stint in hospital for what he calls a tune-up before the spring carnival.

He suffers from cystic fibrosis, a condition that affects the lungs and digestive system, and every four to six months he goes to hospital for five days and has another five days at home on antibiotics.

"I tried to judge it so that if I got a couple of opportunities over the spring, which it looks like I'm going to, I'd be available," Coffey said.

"My health's very good at the moment and it's easy to have good health when you're riding these good horses, but it has to be."

The ride on Prince Of Penzance will be Coffey's third at Group One level and he says he's thankful for the opportunity.

"He's a Melbourne Cup-winning horse and there's a lot of trust in you to get the horse around and get him back safe and sound," Coffey said.

Dandos take over management of Dormello Stud

Hamilton's Dormello Stud is back in business.

Graeme Rogerson and Denise Howell's farm has been reawakened with the announcement of a new management agreement with Bradbury Park's Casey and Michelle Dando.

"It's a fantastic opportunity for us. It's a lovely farm and the timing couldn't have been better for us," Michelle Dando said.

"We purchased the neighbouring farm but we've still been struggling to take on extra horses because we've been at capacity."

Bradbury Park operates on 45 hectares of farmland at Matamata, with its core business as agistment and sales preparation.

Josh Oliver

Queensland recognition for Kiwi apprentice

Josh Oliver's cracking start to his time in Queensland has been recognised with him named as a finalist for Queensland apprentice of the year.

Oliver, who spent time with Graeme

Rogerson, Brian McKeagg and Brendon Hawtin in New Zealand, shifted to Australia last term and linked with Toowoomba trainer Ben Currie.

He won 68 races, second only to James Ormond, who was named champion apprentice at Saturday's Queensland horse of the year awards. Ormond won 143 races, including 70 metropolitan races.

Oliver's recognition comes after fellow Kiwi jockey Rory Hutchings won the Sydney apprentice title and Michael Dee was runner-up to Dylan Dunn in the race for Melbourne apprentice honours.

Marco Chui

Chui keen on Zuccherò's chances

Marco Chui has a handy book of rides at Ashburton today and the former champion Hong Kong apprentice rates Zuccherò (NZ) (Pins) as one of his best.

The 30-year-old successfully combined with the ex-North Islander on the course at the end of last month and they will be chasing a repeat performance in the Downright Drainage Ltd Rating 75.

"Two runs back he went really well," Chui said. "The ground was a little bit too heavy for him after that at Riccarton – he should be one of my main chances."

Previously with Peter and Dawn Williams and Paul Richards at Byerley Park, Zuccherò made a fresh start in May from the Riccarton stable of Neill Ridley and the Pins gelding wasted no time in making his mark from his new quarters. Full story here.

Statistics confirm Myers-Fannin potency

Wanganui trainer Kevin Myers and jumps jockey Shaun Fannin are one of the most potent trainer-jockey combinations in Australasia at present.

Over the past 12 months, Fannin has ridden for Myers on 58 occasions, winning a remarkable 22 races, for a strike rate of one win for every 2.64 rides.

The partnership continued on its winning way at Ellerslie last Saturday, combining for prestige jumps race success in the Pakuranga Hunt Cup with Kick Back (NZ) (Bahhare).

Myers has set a cracking pace in the race for premierships honours this season, with 16 wins already this month to lead the partnerships of Donna Logan and Chris Gibbs and Graeme and Debbie Rogerson by 11.

Fannin shares the lead in the jumps jockeys' premierships with Aaron Kuru on four wins.

The Myers-Fannin combination isn't ruling out success in this year's Great Northern Steeplechase (6400m) at Ellerslie on September 3 either, Fannin rating Kick Back a good chance of completing the Pakuranga Hunt Cup-Northern double.

Phar Lap- The most famous kiwi to race in Australia

Most of the people that saw Phar Lap race, even as youngsters, are pretty much gone now. Yet the big chestnut gelding's name still has power. The son of Night Raid and Entreaty, who lifted hearts and spirits during the depths of the Depression years, remained a measuring stick long after his deeds had passed into history.

Phar Lap developed from a wonderful three-year-old into a virtually unbeatable older horse. During his four-year-old spring in 1930 he successively won the Melbourne (now MacKinnon) Stakes, Melbourne Cup, Linlithgow Stakes (then at a mile, or 1600m) and the C.B.Fisher Plate, at a mile and a half (2400m). Before that he'd won five races in Sydney, plus the Cox Plate.

Phar Lap won 37 of his 51 starts, ran three seconds and two thirds.

Though he never raced in New Zealand, Phar Lap drew discerning eyes to the land of his birth and undoubtedly contributed to the progress of the then fledgling National Yearling Sale at Trentham, from whence he'd been purchased for 160 guineas

His mounted hide is displayed at the Melbourne Museum, his skeleton at Te Papa in Wellington, and his heart is currently stored at the National Museum of Australia in Canberra.
