WAIT A SEC MAKES UP FOR WHANGANUI CUP DISAPPOINTMENT

Wait A Sec cruises home to record a stylish victory at Te Rapa

The disappointment of missing a start in last weekend's Whanganui Cup was eased for the connections of Hawkes Bay galloper Wait A Sec (NZ) (Postponed) when he bolted home at Te Rapa on Saturday.

The six-year-old gelding is in the form of his life with Saturday's victory his third from his last four starts. Judging by the manner that he dealt to a capable field of stayers over the 2100 metres of the rating 85 contest, the victory won't be his last for the winter.

Settled towards the rear in a solidly run event, Wait A

Sec and rider Samantha Collett were spotting the leaders a dozen lengths before Collett began to improve her position with 800 metres to run. Wait A Sec loped stylishly around the outside to join issue on the point of the home turn and seized a winning break shortly after.

Collett kept her mount up to the mark in the closing stages as he eased well clear of a game Francis Drake (NZ) (Tavistock) who chased hard to grab second from Jochen Rindt (NZ) (Ishiguru) who also battled away well for third.

Co-trainer Guy Lowry, who prepares Wait A Sec with training partner Grant Cullen, believes the patience of the gelding's owners is finally being rewarded.

"He seems to have come of age this time in as he has taken a while to mature," he commented.

"He showed plenty of ability early on and ran Kawi close one day at Trentham but he's always been a little weak. His owners have been fantastic and allowed us to be patient with him and they are now reaping the rewards of that."

Lowry believes his charge is now at the stage of this campaign where he can cope with most track conditions although he is wary of flattening the horse with too many runs on the deep winter surfaces.

"He handles most tracks but we don't see him as a true winter galloper," he said.

"I had thought of a race like the Taumarunui Cup as a good target but with it being run at Rotorua it might just be too deep there for him.

"There are still some nice races at Te Rapa coming up so he is likely to have one or two more runs before we put him away for a short break.

"The New Zealand Cup is the sort of race that will suit him so with that in mind he can have a rest soon as you can't keep peaking them all the way to November."

Lowry also reported that talented three-year-old filly Savvy Dreams (NZ) (Savabeel) was thriving during a break at Milan Park following an eventful Australian campaign.

"I took the cover off her at Milan Park on Saturday and she looks a picture," he said.

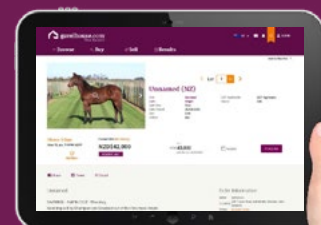

"She has put on weight and seems to be thriving in a good paddock there so I'm delighted with her.

"We are going to give her a good long spell so you won't see her until later in the summer and in to the autumn. She is a quality individual that I think can compete at Group One level so that will be the aim with her."

MCKENZIE KEEN TO PINCH WINTER CUP WITH OUR BANDIT

A plan that began to take shape months ago took a further step to fruition on the weekend when Our Bandit (Bushranger) gave his rivals weight and a beating at Trentham.

The rugged four-year-old handled the difficult track conditions with aplomb despite not having raced for six weeks as he made it four wins from his last five runs and set himself up for a tilt at the Gr. 3 eSTAR Winter Cup at Riccarton in early August.

Trainer Peter McKenzie was confident of a winning run having held the horse in high regard since he first spotted him at breeder Ray Stevens property over a year ago.

"Ray is an old mate of mine and I always pop by to see him and take a look at the horses he has around his place when I can," he explained.

"I liked the look of this guy the minute I laid eyes on him so I organised with Ray to lease him. I had a bunch of people who were keen to race a horse with me so we put together a syndicate and it has blossomed from there."

McKenzie admits he was taken by the Bushranger gelding from the minute he stepped him out on the training track but shin soreness meant a delayed start to his racing career.

"I knew he could gallop from day one but he was quite shinny so we put him aside to let him mature and gave him his first run back in February," he said

"He took a couple of starts to come to it but I think he is very exciting and has a real future ahead of him."

The immediate future is to sneak into the Winter Cup on a light weight, a task that has McKenzie walking a tightrope in the build-up to the 5 August contest.

"I've had a look at the immediate programme and there isn't much around for him between now and the Winter Cup," he admitted.

"I think the Whyte Handicap at Trentham and maybe a rating 85 at Waverley are the only real opportunities between then and now.

"I only have a small team at home so there isn't much to gallop him with so he is going to need a run or two.

"In saying that he doesn't take much to come to hand as he went in to Saturday after a few weeks off and handled it well.

"I actually hadn't planned to give him that break but there was an offer made for him which ended up turning to nothing so he is still with us and I'm hoping that turns out to be a great result for us all."

The eSTAR 120th Winter Cup is the feature event on the first day of Riccarton's traditional three-day winter carnival. – NZ Racing Desk

WOOD RUNNER ROCKS THEM AT TE RAPA

Trainer Chris Wood was in good spirits as he navigated his way around his local golf course on Sunday after adding to a recent run of good results with progressive galloper Roc de Bank (NZ) (Roc de Cambes) a day earlier.

The four-year-old Roc de Cambes gelding made it career win number 5 and third at Te Rapa when he led for the length of the long run home to claim the Ebbett Toyota 1600. Handled skilfully by three kilogram claiming apprentice Darren Danis, the gelding bounced nicely from the outside barrier to take up the running beside the well fancied Ali Baba (NZ) (Savabeel) during the early stages of the contest.

Danis took his charge to a clear lead as the field made the bend into the home straight and defied his challengers to run him down from that point. Despite drifting to the middle of the track Roc de Bank kept up a powerful gallop to score by half a length from Keep On Coming (NZ) (Shamoline Warrior) and The Kipling Girl (High Chaparral) who both charged home out wide in a blanket finish to the contest.

Wood was delighted with the win although his plans for the gelding won't see him step out much over the winter months.

"He's a pretty handy horse and has fashioned a good record at Te Rapa," he said.

"He likes a little cut in the track but isn't a true winter galloper so the track that he struck on Saturday was perfect for him.

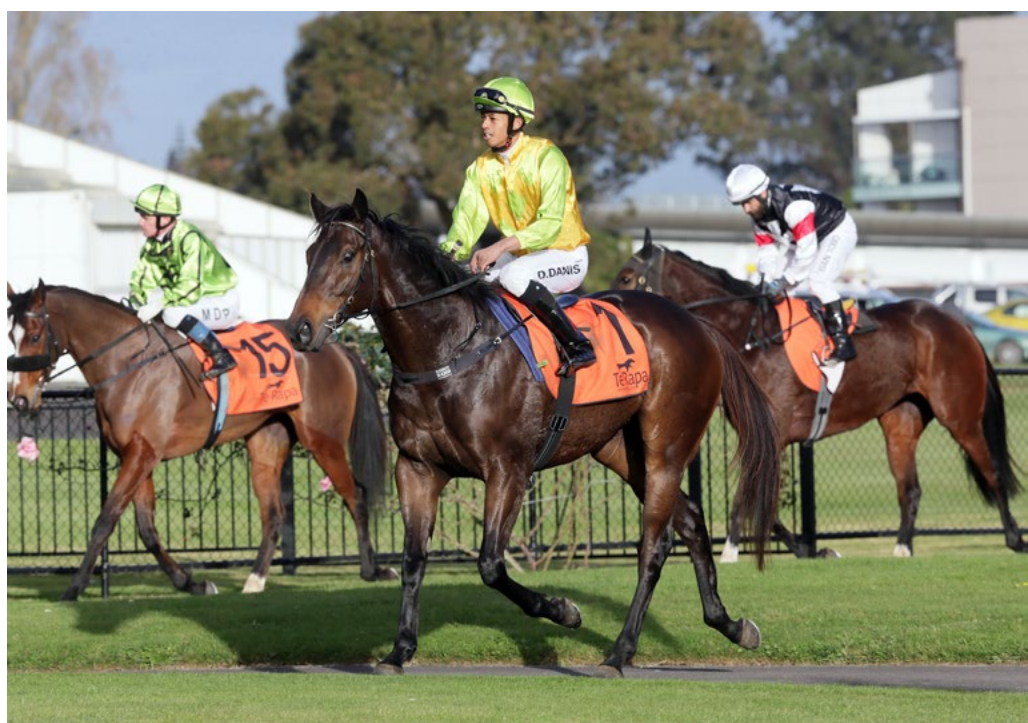

"At this stage, we might find one more for him somewhere and then he can have a break before we bring him back for the spring."

Wood will now turn his attention to the upcoming Orora Kiwi Packaging Kiwifruit Cup (2200m) at Tauranga on the 24th of June where he will line up the likely favourite in Pacorus (NZ) (Tavistock). The five-year-old Tavistock gelding has thrived since finishing third in the Whanganui Cup at his last run with Wood keen to pick up the feature staying event at Tauranga after the horse was a comprehensive winner in rating 75 company on the same day 12 months ago.

MASTERCARD CREDITS ZIMMERMAN WITH FIRST WIN FROM NEW BYERLEY BASE

A comprehensive performance at Te Rapa on Saturday saw promising maiden Mastercard (NZ) (Makfi) put the first tick in the win column for trainer Karen Zimmerman and her new Byerley Park stable.

Zimmerman moved north from her long-established Otaki base back in March and has slowly found her feet in the new surroundings. Mastercard had looked likely to notch a win for the stable at short notice after a strong display at the Avondale trials in early April however in three subsequent race starts had failed to deliver on that promise.

A step up to 1600 metres and a heady ride from Mark Du Plessis righted the ship as the three-year-old Makfi gelding powered over the top of his rivals to break the duck for his mentor.

"It's nice to get the win and especially with this horse as he has been plagued with bad draws," she noted after the race.

"Everything just panned out well for him today."

Zimmerman was quick to acknowledge the support she has received from the Westbury Stud team and boss Gerry Harvey who owns the horse.

"I'm thrilled for Westbury as they have been a very big supporter of mine, both in the Central Districts and up here," she said.

"I've always held the horse in high regard but he's had a few muscle problems along the way as he's such a big horse."

Du Plessis was also pleased with the run as circumstances finally played in Mastercard's favour.

Mastercard makes it win number one for trainer Karen Zimmerman since her move north in March.

"He's always had the ability but just hadn't put it all together," he remarked.

"The heavy tracks haven't been his friend but today he got a perfect track, a good draw and a race run to suit."

BRINGER OF WAR GETS UP IN OPEN COMPANY

Derreck David's status as one of the few resident lightweight expat jockeys was an asset he again fully capitalised on after he steered two-year-old filly Bringer Of War (NZ) (Burgundy) to her first win on Sunday.

The former South African champion apprentice jockey walks around at 50kgs no sweat, but can shed a few more pounds if he has to. With Bringer Of War weighted at 48kgs, not many riders can put their hand up for such a booking, but David can, and he certainly did well to ride her only half-a-kilo over – without having to waste too hard.

Taking the bull by the horns right from the start, David punched Bringer Of War right out of the pens before quickening away to the lead without much fuss.

The other 10 rivals were fairly huddled up behind at the beginning, but suddenly dropped off the pace as they appeared to push each other across the track in their eagerness to jostle for the best position behind Bringer Of War.

The daughter of Burgundy, on the other hand, continued to scrape paint hard up against the rails, and the moment David said "let's go girl", she just ran them off their feet, even if she herself was not the most tractable conveyance inside the last furlong.

David unsurprisingly said Bringer Of War was still a little rough around the edges, but nothing that her connections cannot handle.

"She is a nice filly, but is still learning what racing is all about," said David.

"She showed a lot of gate speed and was never in trouble from that point. She hung out in the straight but she was never in danger.

"A big thank you to Mark Walker who is starting to support me with rides now. I rode the filly half-a-kilo over; I'm always available to any trainer for such lightweight rides."

With Walker still not back from the Gold Coast, assistant-trainer Gus Clutterbuck again did the honours for the low-down on the yard's 45th winner. They later stretched their lead by another win, when even-money favourite Justice Light (NZ) (Darci Brahma) obliged two events later in the $35,000 Open Maiden race over 1200m.

"She had a light weight and I think the 1000m is more her go," said the New Zealander.

"It's good to train a first winner for Jubilant Racing. She is the first one we have trained for them.

"Derreck David often comes to the stable to ride work for us and it's only right to support him with rides when we can."

Bringer Of War's first two runs came in the first two Legs of the Singapore Golden Horseshoe series, producing a second and a third as the favourite on both occasions.

NORMANDY LANDS AT KRANJI WHILE OWNER CELEBRATES IN FRANCE

Duke Of Normandy (NZ) (Pentire) finally landed a win under his new name on Sunday – and momentously enough at a time when his proud owner Steve Levar was toasting to a happy occasion in France!

The Racing Guide boss and former Singapore Turf Club racing presenter seldom misses a chance to be at the races with his lovely wife Christine whenever one of his horses runs, but was glaringly missing at the lead-in after Duke Of Normandy came off a handy spot three wide to take out the $60,000 Class 4 race over 1700m.

Mr and Mrs Levar had flown to the city of romance, Paris – where else - to celebrate their 10th year wedding anniversary, and even though he had probably just woken up or munching on a croissant by the Seine, the IRace Media CEO would not have missed the race in this age of digital media.

“My wife and I are away on our 10th wedding anniversary. So, this is a great present,” said Levar over the phone.

“Ironically, he wins when we are in Paris!”

Arguably, Levar was referring to the capital city of the country Duke Of Normandy brings echoes of, especially during the famous landings of World War II, but trainer Daniel Meagher cheekily had a different spin.

“I’m very happy for Steve Levar as he’s been a good friend for a long time. It’s a shame he is not here when that horse won, but maybe he shouldn’t be here when the horse runs from now on!” said Meagher.

“Seriously, Steve has been very patient with this horse, and I thank him for that. It’s a horse who’s had a lot of soundness issues, feet problem.

“Credit to my farrier Andrew who has done a great job to fix his shoe. Danny (Beasley) also rode him a treat, they were three wide but he didn’t panic.

“His sectional times have been fantastic ever since he’s been with me. He was more of a 2000m horse before he came to me, but I’m glad he’s shown he can be dropped back and still win.”

Levar used to manage and part-own the Pentire chestnut – with some other horses notably Macarthur, Risky Rockefeller and Vanderbilt - for American businessman Adam Levinson, but has retained interests in only the first two while Risky Rockefeller and Vanderbilt have been sold to South African outfit Green Street Stable.

Then known as Air Force One and trained by Steven Burrige, Duke Of Normandy was then a one-time winner over 2000m, and has now taken his record to two wins and five placings from 17 outings for earnings past the $140,000 for the Royalty Racing Stable.
