ROCKET DENIES GALLANT WERTHER IN TAKARAZUKA KINEN

New Zealand bred, Hong Kong champion Werther (orange cap) finishes a gallant second at Hanshin

Setbacks, an earthquake, weight loss, a wide draw and firm ground could not stop Werther's (NZ) (Tavistock) bid for glory in the Gr.1 Takarazuka Kinen (2200m), but a Rocket could as the champion stayer fell just short of victory at Hanshin Racecourse.

"We are so proud of him, he is all heart," said an emotional John Moore, the trainer's voice cracking, after the New Zealand bred Werther returned to the runner-up stall in front of almost 66,000 spectators.

"He's a horse that knows where the winning post is and he showed a lot of fortitude to hit the line. I don't like running second, never do, but from a Hong Kong point of view, we've shown just how good our best stayer is. To take on the best of the Japanese and to run as well as he did, it just shows – don't take Hong Kong's horses lightly."

From gate 13, jockey Hugh Bowman snagged the Tavistock gelding back to settle in the last four down the Hanshin straight the first time, sitting quietly on the bay until the 600m point.

Bowman then brought Hong Kong's 2015/16 Horse of the Year to the outside of the field and began to track up promisingly, making strides at every call. Cornering widest of all, he came with a withering run down the centre of the track

NEW ZEALAND BLOODSTOCK

2019 National Yearling Sales Series

Karaka 2019 will showcase a captivating week of New Zealand's finest racing and selling. The fresh new format that delivered phenomenal results in 2018 will stay – attracting yet another world-class buying bench.

"We were all delighted when we heard there was an extra day in the Sale. We all got to stay here and there are a lot of good horses around the place. I think it's great, it's very positive." – Tom Magnier

"It gives us much more opportunity and time to get around and see all the horses, whereas in the past we were always chasing our tails. Now we've been able to do it by the day and actually get ahead of ourselves with no pressure, so I am a real supporter of it." – Hubie de Burgh

"It's an extraordinary opportunity for the industry here because you've gone from having a race meeting, you've gone from having a sale, and it's now been combined. I think you have a truly great event that can only continue to build." – Shane Anderson

Karaka 2019 will be host to another packed and world-class buying bench with 2018's successful new format to continue.

and, entering Hanshin's notorious rise at the 200m, he loomed up as the possible winner.

However, he could not reel in trainer Hidetaka Otonashi's gutsy Mikki Rocket (King Kamehameha), who scraped home for a neck victory.

It was a notable effort from Werther given that he was entering the Takarazuka Kinen with only one run under his belt in the last four months. That was in the Gr.3 Lion Rock Trophy Handicap (1600m) three weeks ago, where he finished sixth under top-weight.

"If he had been aimed solely for this with a preparation to suit, rather than this being something of an afterthought with only the one mile run under him, I think he would have won," Bowman said.

"The one run at a mile up to a Japanese 2200m race is not easy and, even though these races suit his style, his condition just gave out late. Full credit must go to John and the stable for getting him to this level at this distance and for getting him to run so well."

Bowman, who rode in Sydney on Wednesday and flew to Osaka specifically for the Werther ride, was proud of his mount's effort to finish second.

"To be honest, even though we didn't win, I couldn't have been happier with the horse's performance," he said.

"I had a beautiful run in transit and he seemed to enjoy the genuine speed that he gets in Japan.

"I had the run I desired, he was very comfortable and I was able to move into the race behind Vivlos, which I felt was the main danger.

"At the top of the straight, I thought he was going to win, and I thought I had the winner covered at the 200m, but at the line, I felt the winner was going away from me. It's disappointing, you always want to win, but he's still run the race of his life even in defeat."

NEWS IN BRIEF

OTAKI-MAORI TO RESUME RACING ON 21 OCTOBER

The Otaki-Maori Racing Club (OMRC) and New Zealand Thoroughbred Racing (NZTR) have agreed that returning to racing on the track any earlier than the meeting scheduled for 21 October could jeopardise the benefits of the drainage work done on the track in the autumn.

Extensive drainage work has been carried out on the Otaki track, from the 800m mark to the 1500m, and the annual track renovation has also been completed.

OMRC and NZTR have decided to err on the side of caution and will return to racing in October. This decision will allow the track to consolidate and have a grass surface that provides confidence to participants and punters.

NZTR Chief Executive Bernard Saundry said the club was taking a practical approach to the situation. "I know the club is keen to be back in action on their home track. They have made the sensible decision to allow the track further rest time. We have all seen instances where tracks have been used too soon after infrastructure works, which can be costly and not in the best interests of the track in the longer term."

PIKE CONFIDENT HEADING INTO SUNSHINE COAST GUINEAS

Cambridge trainer Tony Pike is feeling quietly confident as he heads into this weekend's Gr.3 Sunshine Coast Guineas (1600m) with star three-year-old, The Bostonian (NZ) (Jimmy Choux).

The Jimmy Choux gelding gave his age group rivals a good old-fashioned hiding over 1400m at Doomben on Saturday with Pike reporting he had come through the race in excellent fashion.

"He has pulled up well and provided there are no issues over the next couple of days then we will head into the weekend with a fit and in-form runner," he said.

"It was a top performance on Saturday as he was caught a little wide early on with Michael (Cahill) having to give him a dig up to cross over to the front.

"Once he got there he relaxed nicely and kept up a very strong gallop throughout to win fairly convincingly.

"It was a day that didn't really suit the front-runners so to do what he did stamped it as a very good effort."

Pike could well have a strong hand in this Saturday's final three-year-old feature for the Queensland Winter Carnival with stablemate Sacred Rebel (Sepoy) also likely to start in the race after finishing mid-field behind his stablemate on the weekend.

"On the face of it he could have appeared a little disappointing, but circumstance played against him," he said.

"He got caught five-wide and didn't get any peace until he got outside The Bostonian with about 600m to run.

"He only battled in the straight but I guess that was to be expected given how much work he did early on.

"Provided he comes through that effort okay then he will be nominated for the Guineas as well."

Win, lose or draw this Saturday's race will be the last for The Bostonian in his current campaign with a short spell in Queensland beckoning before a return to New Zealand.

"He will head to the paddock for a couple of weeks after this one and then we will bring him back home," said Pike.

"He can have a good break and then we will get him ready for the spring. He has the makings of a very nice horse and he shouldn't be hard to place in the new season." – NZ Racing Desk

NEWS IN BRIEF

Walker quinella's Singapore feature

Two-time Singapore champion trainer Mark Walker added another highlight to his glittering resume on Sunday when he trained the quinella in the S$1m Charity Bowl (1600m).

Te Akau Racing's Walker, who currently sits second on the Trainer's Premiership ladder, has produced twenty one Group One winners worldwide but had failed to pick up the local equivalent during his eight year stint in Singapore.

That record was rectified on Sunday when race favourite Elite Invincible (Archarcharch) outlasted the fast finishing Kingsman (NZ) (Darci Brahma) to provide the Kranji conditioner with a deserved one-two in the day's feature.

Superbly ridden by Vlad Duric, Elite Invincible sat in a handy position throughout before issuing his challenge early in the run home. The four-year-old gelding swept to the front and looked set for a convincing victory until Kingsman made his late dab to cut the margin to a rapidly diminishing long neck at the line.

It was the fifth win in Singapore and sixth overall for Elite Invincible who began his career in Europe under the name Qatar Man.

COSSACK WARRIOR LOOKS LATE SEASON THREE-YEAR-OLD FIND

Judging by the manner of Saturday's win in strong rating 65 company, three-year-old Cossack Warrior (NZ) (Shamoline Warrior) has a big future ahead of him.

The Shamoline Warrior gelding had looked unlucky when finishing in behind the placegetters at Te Awamutu on debut and proved that opinion correct when scoring nicely at Matamata at his next start. Saturday's contest was a further step up in grade which the Catherine Cameron trained galloper took in fine style with a powerful home straight burst to claim victory.

"He was quite a weak type as a two-year-old although you could see the ability was there in his early trials," said Cameron.

"We had to be patient with him but once he strengthened up a little I did think he could turn out to be a good type as he comes from quite a strong family."

Cameron admitted she had not harboured any great hopes when her charge made his Te Awamutu debut, thinking that if he weighed in she would be more than pleased.

"As it turned out he was quite unlucky and Jonathan (Riddell) was quite disgusted with himself as he said he definitely should have finished much closer," she said.

"He stuck with him to win at Matamata and it was another really good ride on Saturday as he didn't panic when they got a wee way off them.

"We know he is a pretty tenacious type of horse and that showed as he refused to lie down and managed to get his nose in front at the right time again."

Cameron is convinced that Cossack Warrior will be best suited when stepped up to a middle distance, an option she will look at further into his current campaign.

"He is a half-brother to Bahhton, who was quite a handy stayer, so I do think his future lies over ground," she said.

"While he has won nicely over 1400m at his last two starts I am keen to try him over a middle distance.

"He's an easy horse to train and doesn't take too much out of himself so while he is in form we will keep him going for a wee while longer.

"There is a nice race coming up at New Plymouth next month so that's where we are headed then we will decide whether to give him a break and bring him back for the spring.

"He handled better ground okay when he trialed, so I think the spring tracks will be perfect for him with some more maturity on his side." - NZ Racing Desk

Juvenile debutant William James is all class at Riccarton

Ocean Park youngster William James (NZ) put trainer and part-owner Joanne Hillis immediately on the right side of the ledger when he made a winning debut at Riccarton on Saturday.

Hillis and partner Barry Cottle outlaid $8,000 for the gelding at the Select session of the 2017 Karaka Yearling Sale after Hillis had been looking at the Waikato Stud draft during the sale.

"I had a look through the Waikato Stud draft and was contemplating my options when this fellow came back from his turn in the auction ring," she said.

"I asked them which one it was and they told me he was by Ocean Park and he hadn't got a bid.

"I took a good look at him and thought he was a pretty nice type. I asked how much they wanted for him and was told $10,000.

"I managed to talk them into $8,000 and he was ours to take home."

Hillis was taken by the youngster but admitted she wasn't sure how he would go on the weekend as he hadn't been off her Mosgiel property before Saturday.

"We didn't have the opportunity to trial him and or even to gallop him that much, so it was an adventure into the unknown really," she said.

"The only option to trial him was to take him north to the Canterbury region so we decided he could just as well have a run at the races so that's what we did.

"Apart from a bit of a mishap at the start where he got down on his haunches, he was quite professional throughout.

"He's never had more than one horse near him in his trackwork but he seemed to be comfortable enough in the field and when he was asked for an effort he dug deep and scored a nice win."

Handled confidently by Shankar Muniandy, William James overcame his tardy start to race up into a challenging position on the home corner before drawing clear in the final stages of the 1000m contest.

“This trip away will do him the world of good but it has created a bit of a puzzle for us,” said Hillis.

“We had planned to tip him out but there could also be an option for him at Oamaru if we decide to press on.

“I expect to get a few phone calls about the possibility of selling him so that will add to the confusion.

“There is quite a bit of sentimentality involved as he is named after my father so I don’t really want to let him go. We’re getting on a bit too and it would be nice to have a good horse to race so we will just have to wait and see what plays out.

“The good thing is that he picked up $14,000 for the win so he doesn’t owe us anything with maybe some more to come.”

Seaway for Sunshine Coast Guineas

Talented Seaway (NZ) (Ocean Park) is likely to be top trainer Chris Waller’s sole runner in the Group Three Sunshine Coast Guineas.

The race holds a special place for Waller with Winx (Street Cry) successful in 2015 to begin a streak of wins which now stands at 25, 18 at Group One level.

Waller said he was always keen to have runners in the Guineas and at Caloundra.

“We won’t have a big representation at the Sunshine Coast. At this stage Seaway will be our only runner in the Guineas but that could change after I have a talk with my staff,” he said.

Seaway ran second to stablemate Sambro (Fastnet Rock) in the Group Two Queensland Guineas (1600m) at his last start on June 9.

He has won three races, all at Canterbury in Sydney, but Waller feels Seaway will have no problems with the big Caloundra track.

TRACK SPECIALIST DOMINANT AT TE AROHA

Te Aroha track specialist Laekeeper (NZ) (Keeper) was at it again on his favourite home surface on Sunday when he took out the Frank & Annie Matijasevich Memorial Hurdle (3100m), the feature hurdle event on the day.

The victory was the Keeper six-year-old's third over the jumps from just five starts, with all coming at Te Aroha.

Settled in the trail by rider Emily Farr, Laekeeper jumped fluently throughout the early stages of the contest albeit up to a dozen lengths off the tearaway pacemaker, Sino Heights (NZ) (China Cat).

Farr made a lightning move at the 1200m mark to join issue with Sino Heights before shooting to the front as she applied the pressure a long way from home. Laekeeper had his chasers under the pump approaching the home turn although Hesalljazz (NZ) (Coats Choice) had closed to just a length in arrears.

That was as close as he got as Laekeeper pulled out plenty in the run home to hold his rival at bay with El Corby (NZ) (Istidaad) catching the eye as he ran on nicely to snatch third.

"I was actually going a lot faster than I wanted to as he's very strong at the moment and just loves his job," said Farr.

"With the ability that he has got he could still quicken. He's just incredible."

Trainer Simon Rees found it hard to contain his excitement as he waited for his charge to make his way back to the Te Aroha birdcage.

"We're just thrilled," he said.

"We were a bit nervous before the race but he got the job done."

Rees revealed it hadn't been all plain sailing leading into the race after a mishap at his first run back on the flat at Avondale.

"He swallowed his tongue at Avondale a couple of weeks ago so we were a little bit concerned about him," he said.

Laekeeper flies a fence on his way to victory

"We put the tongue tie on for his next start and he came right which was a relief."

Rees will now ready the horse for some of the major hurdle events still to come in the season with a trip to Riccarton on the cards.

"We are probably going to try and keep him to his home track, but we do have our eye on the big ones," he said.

"We are definitely looking at the Grand National at Riccarton, but it will depend on how he goes from here as he really needed the run today."

FINNEGAL GETS ON GOALSHEET AT KRANJI

Irish eyes were smiling after South Australian Dux apprentice jockey Emily Finnegan scored her first Singapore win aboard Gol Goal (NZ) (Towkay) on Sunday.

The 25-year-old Irish jockey did not taste success from five previous rides at her first two Kranji meetings, but she quickly made up for it by getting right on target in Sunday's opener, the $45,000 Class 4 Non Premier race over 1400m.

While there is no doubt Finnegan can ride, what stood out even more was her composure when $14 favourite Gol Goal flopped out of the gates, but she calmly settled the Towkay five-year-old at the rear before slowly allowing the tardy beginner to improve around the field from the 600m - and sprint to the line as the finishing touch.

"I've waited for a week to get the monkey off the back," said a clearly happy and relieved Finnegan.

"I've worked this horse and he is quietest gem in trackwork, but Shane told me he can be slow out of the gates and I was prepared for that. I just let him find his own feet, find his own rhythm and let him do his best work late.

"He was laying in in the straight, but he was too good in the end, and did the rest. Shane has trained this horse to perfection."

A clearly impressed Baertschiger for one would definitely be putting the plucky lass on a few more horses before she leaves.

"Emily has done everything right since she's joined us. She hasn't received much support from trainers outside, but I'm happy to put her on," said the Australian handler who has thus far supplied six of her 10 rides.

"She rode Gol Goal a treat. This horse always misses the kick and I told her not to worry about that, he's best ridden quiet.

"She took him to the outside and got the job done."

Previously known as Sacred Army, Gol Goal has now recorded two wins and seven placings from 21 starts for stakes earnings around the $120,000 mark for the H & M Stable.

AUSHORSE NEXT AFTER AUTUMN ASSAULT PASSES TURF TEST

Autumn Assault (NZ) (Rock 'n' Pop) earned his ticket to the Aushorse Golden Horseshoe (1200m) with a convincing win at only his second start on Sunday.

An unlucky second to Pennywise (Pure Prize) on debut in the second Leg of the Singapore Golden Horseshoe series, the Magic Millions National Yearling Sale Stakes (1100m) three weeks ago, the Rock 'n' Pop two-year-old was lining up in the $85,000 Restricted Maiden race over 1200m to get some turf experience before the Grand Final on June 13.

Autumn Assault was actually hailed the winner in that second Leg, having already raced past Pennywise as he charged to the lead at the 300m, but unfortunately, he could not finish it off when Pennywise came back with a second wind.

The SIN-HK Friendship 2 Stable-owned galloper replicated the same tactics on Sunday, but trainer David Kok must have been indeed very pleased when he kept going this time, though he had to keep the champagne on ice when runner-up Fame Star's (Twirling) jockey Olivier Placais lodged an objection upon dismounting.

The protest was, however, dismissed, and Kok could plan the next "Assault" towards the Aushorse Golden Horseshoe.

"He's still a bit green as you could see. He was laying in, but he sure has good potential," said Kok.

"Benny rode him well. He waited

Autumn Assault runs out an impressive winner at Kranji

a little longer to launch him and even though he was stopping and waiting for another horse to come back, he did enough to get home.

"He joined our stable in mid-March and to have already won one race and finished second in two starts is quite remarkable."

Woodworth said he had no idea where the alleged interference occurred. He conceded the horse was laying in under pressure, being a young inexperienced horse, but he never impeded Fame Star who was beaten half-a-length.

"He did lay in but at no time did it take the running of the other horse," said the Malaysian jockey.
